Reports.

Report of S. S. " Undine," Lieut. Comm. Morant, arrived in Amoy on the evening of the 22rd from a cruise after pirates in Hactan Straits and the vicincty-In seven days

Lieut, Morant captured no less than 12 piratical craft with 71 men-Ten of the vessels he buent, and two were handed over to the Mandarira of were killed, and 3 drowned themselves rather than be enpenred-Some 53 were sent from Haeliker. Morant to the authorities at Amy-chief Ona-Coo who has been pirating on the coast for over ten years, and who has evaded not only lack out for him, but the gun-boats also. He and his crew for the most part were long hair, and were unshaved, others had no tails. The Mandarin on Bastan was highly pleased at his cap-character he could not deal with him, but would put him in a aise and send him to the Vicerov at Foochow. Another chief pirate was also taken named Nam-tow-hall well known to the Ubinese as a pirate, but not quite such notorious character

The Chief Goa Con is described as an old grey headed man of proposessing appearance, who exhibited the atmost and afterence to the late after his cupture, saying that it was his had luck to he taken at last. His death with doubtless be a drendful one, as amongs, other orings he is guilty

It is well worthy of adre, that since the Grasshopper has been on the Amoy station under the command of Lieut. Maint, in less than four menths she has captured no less than 20 piratical

THE COLD SHADE OF ARISTOCIACY. -If your brother marries the hulf-sister of another man, what is the correct description of the relationship, or rather connectionship, thus established between vontself and your brother's wife's half-brother? The exact definition of the family tie thus created may perhaps be sufly left in the hunds of the Heralds College. For practical purposes an illustration is sufficient. Sir John Ramilly's brother, Mr. Charles Romilly, is married to the half-eister of Lord (northern entrance of the Risaw straits) have Russell. How profitless, there one, have been the discussions of lawyers and journalists | concorning the reasons why Sir John should have become a peer only a few weeks after Lord Palmersion beased to rule; in the coinaels of the Cabinet. Is it not one of the laws of nature to provide for one's kith and kin and all that belong to them? Is not Lord Rusprefell in the Russell sense may be doubted alm. at ticism, we might find the Scotch divine coming to the resour of his patron and justifying the recent The Military world, as some of my journalistic elevation by the an harity of the self-denying the great Sir Robert's practice of never employing his political newer for the aggrandizement of The official character of the journal to question his relations. It not necessary to conclude, however, that this outbreak is personally directed against the Quoen We have not witnessed, indeed, since her ageession, a declared revolt against the Second Isaw bella; hut there has grown up a Separatist movement in certain of the Spanish provinces, the Northern especially. Now, the Spanish provinces: in their ideas and actions, are generally very independent of Madrid, a fact which accounts for so many insurrections of late years not initiated in the capital. They live and work by themselves, they have never more than once or twice in the history of the Spanish people auhmitted to the metropolitan supremucy; but they resent maladministration whencesoever it comes; and it was a resentment of this kind, caused by an extr vagant and reakless imposition of taxes that caused the electors of Navarre, Maestrazzo, and Upper Ontaparty, was, strange though it be, did not dissuade the men who call themselves " men of progress." from violent and even mannoing agitation. At Barcelona there has actually been a public and and commanding the whole view of the barbor unrepressed talk of secession. Naverth lees, those towns and districts are not proverbially disloyal, If we are saked, what is to be inferred from all Athis, the chief organ of opinion in Madrid pretty plainly answers us. It says that the Government of Madrid, while separating itself from the old politics of the Spanish monarchy, has chaleaged a war to the knife with the extreme parties to its right and to its left; that it intrigues between the palace and the confessional; that it misemplays and disgusts the army; that the treasury of the kirgdom is empty; that borrowed inoney is wasted upon wanton expeditions; and that Spain, which has so often disconcerted the intelligence of Europe, is now about to disconcert it more than ever. This is a slightly cynical, although suggestive view of the crisis already stained with blood; but, while wanting for a bettet knowledge of the circumstances, our regret for Spain must be that she is thus maltreated, to her own misery, by her detectable factions; while rate terms. our hope is that, in her altempt to escape them, she will not enjoy "the sad success" of a revolution which may ruin instead of reforming the sinte, and leave her blindfold to begin another
